To whom it may concern,

A little background information about me: I am twenty-four years old, husband of an incredibly talented Graphic Designer, and the soon to be dad of a baby boy. I was born and raised in Utah County. After graduating from high school, I elected to delay higher education to serve my church.

After returning home from a two-year proselytizing mission in Mexico, I returned to Mexico a few times to try my luck at network marketing and foreign business. After having some success, I returned home. Shortly after returning to Utah, I began working for James Landscaping. While working for James Landscaping, I learned that success in business comes from customer satisfaction and quality of product. I then started, and ran my own landscaping business for a year. I currently work for Intermountain Healthcare in a leadership position.

While attending Utah Valley University in the fall of 2015 and spring of 2016 as a sport science major, I began studying web development and programing. I was fascinated by technology, and the advancements/improvements it can make in people's lives. I studied some of the basics in online courses such as Khan Academies intro to JS, and Code Academies HTML and CSS. By the end of the courses, I was hooked. I found DevMountain, and enrolled in their after hours Web Development Course. I completed the course in December Of 2016. Since then, I've finished my first web application. It allows users to host, and join sport pick up games. I've continued to study and push myself to learn new development techniques, and technologies. I learn quickly, and enjoy learning new things.

I'm ready to make my move into the industry. I look forward to learning more, and the contributions I will make to your team and business.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Joshua R. Smith
